Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from A Biographical Sketch of George Washington It was a custom among the ancient Romans, says an eminent writer, to preserve, in wax, the figures of those, among their ancestors, who were of noble birth, or had been more nobly advanced to the chair of honor by their personal merits and rare exploits. Sallust relates, that - Scipio, and other great men, by beholding those likenesses, found enkindled in their breasts so ardent a thirst after virtue as could not be extinguished, till, by the glory of their own actions they had equalled the illustrious objects of their emulation. - These means and motives may be very good, but it belongs to Christianity alone to inspire her most affectionate friends with views infinitely higher and more imperishable. The good sense and experience of mankind, confirmed by the lapse of ages, have fixed this point, that example is that sort of silent rhetoric which at the same time convinces and persuades. In every respect a great and meritorious man, George Washington was an example to the world, and in Masonic Circles his memory will always be cherished as that of an Ideal Man and Mason. The 100th anniversary of his death will be celebrated with fitting ceremonies by the Free Masons of the United States, under the auspices of the Grand Lodge of Virginia, at Alexandria and Mt. Vernon, on December 14th, 1899. It is not, therefore, wholly from mercenary motives, nor without some sense of propriety, that the National Fraternal League, an association organized by Masons and for Masons, presents this Biographical Sketch at this time to the seventeen thousand members of the Fraternity in Connecticut....
